Description

The PASSING workshop builds upon the Introduction to SRV course by providing a hands-on experience with actual human service programs. This training is designed to help participants gain a deeper understanding of devaluation and of how the promotion of valued social roles may enable access to "the good things of life." The workshop is directed at anyone who is interested in bringing about change in the lives of devalued people, including families, human service workers and managers, service users, students, advocates, board members, and others. More info: srv-sotg.ca

Prerequisite: Full attendance at a multi-day SRV workshop (typically a 3 or 4 days in person, 8-9 virtual sessions). Details required upon registration.

Format

Most of the course work is completed in small teams guided by a Team Leader. Each team visits two different human services, a residential program and a day service. Following each visit, the team uses the PASSING manual to consider how the program contributes (or impedes) the development of valued social roles. There are plenary sessions at the beginning and end of the workshop.

Accommodations, Parking and Meals

Participants must book their own accommodation at Seneca College (Newnham Campus). Each newly renovated suite includes two separate bedrooms, and a shared kitchenette and bathroom. Cost: SOTG promo rate $129.95 + tax per suite, per night. Reserve early, suites book up quickly.

Parking is available at the residence.

Participants are responsible for their own food. There are many food options on campus.

Schedule

The workshop is offered in an intensive format, beginning on Sunday evening and ending mid-afternoon Friday, involving evening sessions each day. Given the nature of the service visits and teamwork, participants can expect to begin each day by or before 8:00 am and work well into the evening (approx. 9-10pm). We cannot be entirely precise about finishing times as this is dictated by the task itself and team process.
